

Perma Glass of Indiana

Indianapolis, Ind.

Before construction on this pool even started, privacy was already secured by the trees, hedges and a small stone wall enclosing the area.

A unique, funky patterned deck surrounds this 35-by-16-foot freeform pool. Lining the pool are in-laid gray stones in the same pattern, giving the pool dimension. According to Perma Glass of Indiana, installing an automatic pool cover was tough with the chosen deck pattern.

Fiber-optic lighting highlights the pool's deepest end, which measures 8 feet, allowing swimmers to enjoy the pool even after the sun sets. Seats, steps and a convenience ledge were built into the pool to enable users to relax without climbing out of the pool water. ▼
